Health
Western Sydney
Local Health District

About us

Western Sydney Local Health District (WSLHD) is a leader in clinical services, research and education providing a diverse range of public healthcare to more than 946,000 residents in Sydney's west as well as services to those outside our catchment from specialty statewide centres of expertise.

To sustain projected demand WSLHD has been undergoing a multibillion dollar capital redevelopment program, including best practice and innovations to maintain community expectations in healthcare delivery, research and education.

WSLHD Perioperative Services Plan

A comprehensive, networked, high-quality surgical and perioperative service operates in Western Sydney Local Health District (WSLHD).

Services are marked by exceptional patient care and satisfaction, efficiency, and achieving or exceeding productivity targets and key surgery performance indicators.

The scope and complexity of surgical services offered at facilities will reflect their surgical resources and support services.

Elective Paediatric surgical services are now provided at Auburn & Blacktown Hospitals. The district is working toward strengthening partnerships with The Children's Hospital at Westmead, aiming to include sharing of theatres on the Westmead Precinct and exploring opportunities to further develop adult and paediatric Westmead Precinct services.

Why choose WSLHD

Huge expansion and growth of services has occurred across the LHD, with large perioperative facilities/services opened in 2021 and 2022. This provides enormous employment opportunities for staff with experience in perioperative nursing.

Support is provided by experienced Perioperative educators and includes an intensive Perioperative orientation program, skills workshops, rostered supernumerary release, ongoing inservices and use of recognised Ministry of Health learning resources.
